Notes:

A. Depending on technical capabilities and/or the limit hours practiced by partner banks, BCR can, but is not bound to process certain operations received after the limit hour (similarly to those received before the limit hour).

B. BCR reserves the right to change the limit hour for banking operations performance and their related processing rules by displaying them at the premise of the bank operational entities and/or by sending an information message.

² A working day is any day in which the banks in Romania are opened for business and inter-banking transactions concluded in Romania. In case the payment is performed in another currency than the national one, a Working Day means any day in which the banks are opened for business/foreign currency exchange transactions concluded in Romania and in the main financial center related to the currency in which the respective payments are made.

³ The currency date is the date on which the transferred amount should be received by the beneficiary's bank, except that the beneficiary's bank can choose not to credit the beneficiary's account on the same day the amount was received.

⁴ Crediting and debiting will be performed depending on the maturity date for the promissory notes and bill of exchange.
